Agnes Meyer Outstanding Teacher Award Nominations Sought

Has a teacher in Falls Church made a difference in your life or your child's life? Then why not nominate that special educator for the Agnes Meyer Outstanding Teacher Award? The Washington Post will honor a teacher from each school system in Northern Virginia who understands students' needs and instills in them a desire to learn and to achieve.

Each year the newspaper gives the award to one teacher in each of 19 Washington metropolitan area school districts who instills in students a desire to learn and achieve, understands the individual needs of the students, and demonstrates a thorough knowledge of subject matter and the ability to share it effectively with students. A committee will choose the district's representative for the award. The Washington Post will award the Agnes Meyer Outstanding Teachers with $3000 each at a reception in April.

Information and nomination forms are available from school offices and school-affiliated organizations. Or to download the nomination forms, please click on this link: www.fccps.k12.va.us/html/AMForms.pdf. Completed nomination packets are due in the Superintendent's office by January 6, 2006.
